PROHIBITION HAS MADE GOOD

Remarkable Results Which Insure Permanence of Kansas Law.

TOPEKA, Kansas, March 13.—Prohibition is a settled question in Kansas. Following the closing of the blind pigs, drug stores have been regulated, and the State is now on a cash basis, as wives are able to pay for groceries and other goods they formerly bought on credit, while the family earnings went into drunken carousals. Merchants are offering premiums to men who formerly drank, showing what can be purchased for the price of three drinks of whisky per day. Big lists of household goods are made up and offered in job lots for the total that a man would thus drink in a year. In addition, merchants offer a cash bonus to all former drinkers who accept these offers.

The list of goods includes almost everything an ordinary family would need during the year in the way of canned goods, linen, soap, flour, sugar, etc. It is calculated to surprise a man who never realized just what he was pouring down his throat.

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—The black-eyed Susan has been selected as the official flower of Maryland by vote of the school children of the State, and the fact has been duly recorded in the minutes of the State Board of Education.

Goldenrod gave the miniature sunflower a close run in the race for first choice, and following it came the rose, the trailing arbutus and the pink carnation.

Black-eyed Susan was popular with the children because it combines the black and gold of the State colors.

SCENES IN HAWAII.

There will be no entertainment on at the Bonine tonight, owing to the special Hawaiian exhibition for tomorrow evening.

Wednesday evenings now will be set aside for "Hawaiian night," when an entire entertainment will be made up of Hawaiian scenes for the convenience of visiting tourists and others interested in the scenic beauty and industries of the islands, and this list will be revised and enlarged from time to time and new features constantly added. As many of the visiting tourists seldom get to the other islands, it is the intention to bring every place of interest on the other islands right here to the Bonine.

EXPLAINED.

Prof. Robert Herrick of the University of Chicago desired to point out to a young sonneteer the difference between the words "astonish" and "surprise." "Noah Webster," Professor Herrick said, "was once caught by his wife in the act of pressing the hand of the pretty cook."

"The cook, blushing like a rose, fled at once to her kitchen," Mrs. Webster said in a sad, tremulous voice.

"Why, Noah, I am surprised!"

"But the philologist, looking over his glasses at his wife, answered reprovingly:

"Madam, you have not studied our glorious language as you should. It's I who am surprised. You are astonished."—Philadelphia Record.

EXACTNESS.

"So your little old objects to saying 'Now I lay me down to sleep'?"

"Yes, she is a faithful child, and we have been living in a room near an elevated railway in New York, where nobody could sleep."
